Londonians can visit the Atlantic or Pacific this summer WestJet adds seasonal non-stop service to Halifax and Vancouver

CALGARY, Alberta. December 17, 2008. WestJet today announced it will offer seasonal non-stop service from London, Ont. to Halifax and Vancouver. As part of its enhanced summer schedule, the airline will fly daily from London, Ont. to these cities starting May 11, 2009.

"This new service will make it easier than ever to travel between southern Ontario and Halifax, the gateway to Atlantic Canada, or Vancouver on the Pacific coast," said Bob Cummings, Executive Vice-President of Guest Experience and Marketing. "We hope leisure and business travellers from London and the surrounding area will enjoy this convenient new service, and we are excited to be able to offer our guests from the West Coast and Atlantic Canada the chance to experience and conduct business in southern Ontario.

"The 55 destinations in our network demonstrate that we are moving closer to our goal of achieving market share of between 45 and 50 per cent in Canada by 2013," continued Bob Cummings. "By continuing to strategically adjust our schedule to meet Canadians' needs and staying true to our award-winning culture, we look forward to sharing our great guest experience with more travellers than ever before."

Following are the schedule details of WestJet's new seasonal non-stop service, starting May 11, 2009.

London, Ont. - Halifax (daily)

Flight	Departure	Arrival
From London – WS565	8:15 p.m.	11:19 p.m.
From Halifax – WS466	8 a.m.	9:23 a.m.

London, Ont. - Vancouver (daily)

Flight	Departure	Arrival
From London – WS565	10 a.m.	11:53 a.m.
From Vancouver – WS466	12:30 p.m.	7:39 p.m.

This announcement is part of WestJet's enhanced summer schedule, which also includes the addition of four new destinations: Sydney, N.S., Yellowknife, San Diego and San Francisco, as well as increased frequency in its existing network. From London, WestJet guests can fly non-stop or connect easily to Winnipeg and Calgary.
